

Safety is the name of the game, not special interests. It is ultimately unsafe for me to have to surf local radio stations for traffic and weather information as I travel towards and through a town. Safety dictates that I know where to go and am able to preset the towns on my route into the XM radio so that I can receive the information I need at the touch of ONE button instead of having to surf channel after channel for information and not finding it. We should be finding ways to make our roads safer rather than more dangerous by having access to these possibly life saving services provided by XM radio. Is this not more important that the special interests of a few local radio stations who will not benefit from our passing through their town anyway? I do not understand how having these valuable services offered by XM Radio affects local radio stations that we don't listen to in the first place. It's safety that counts, not the special interests of a few.
